The Gila monster has the ability to consume large amounts of food at one time. This is necessary since it may not find food regularly in its desert environment. The Gila monster has powerful limbs for digging—a necessary design feature since this species is terrestrial and lives in dry desert regions, rather than in trees as many other lizards do.

The Gila monster has short limbs; a short, flat tail; a heavy body; and black and pink, or yellow, scales.

Fat can be stored in the tail and abdomen of the Gila monster to be utilized during the winter.

The Gila monster is one of two kinds of venomous lizards. The venom is secreted through grooves in the teeth, and is used mainly for defense against predators.

The Gila monster cannot jump.

The female of this species lays 3–5 eggs in sandy soil, burrows, or under rocks.

Created Kind Members: Beaded lizard CLASS: Reptilia (reptiles) ORDER: Squamata (amphisbaenians, lizards, and snakes) FAMILY: Helodermatidae (venomous lizards) GENUS/SPECIES: Heloderma suspectum Size: Up to 2 ft (0.6 m) Weight: 3–5 lbs (1.3–2.2 kg)

Original Diet: Plants Present Diet: Birds, small mammals, lizards, and eggs Habitat:

Desert and semiarid, shrubby regions in the Mohave, Sonoran, and Chihuahuan deserts of Southwest U.S. and into Mexico

~BIRTHDAYS & ANNIVERSARIES~

Sept. 13, Happy Birthday! Dean Yoder, 1991

John Wesley

"Born in 1703, John Wesley was the fifteenth child, and second surviving son of Susanna and Samuel Wesley. His father was the pastor of Epworth... [When John was age five] the Wesleys' home caught on fire in the night. All the children were removed safely from the house, but when they were counted, John was missing. A farmer from nearby spotted little John looking out of an upstairs window amid the leaping flames. Several neighbors climbed on each other's shoulders, until the man on top was able to put his arms around the boy and pull him out of the flames to safety. Only moments after he was rescued, the entire house exploded in flames. Ever after, for the rest of his life, John Wesley referred to himself 'as a brand plucked from the burning,' quoting Zechariah 3:2." Leslie F. Church, Knight of the Burning Heart: The Story of John Wesley. Read more at <http://tinyurl.com/mjez8j6>

Every Christian is a "brand plucked from the fire." We have been saved from the fire that shall never be quenched, and our commission is to pull sinners "out of the fire, hating even the garment defiled by the flesh" (Jude 23).
