Fun Badger Facts

Badgers are part of the family the same family as otters, ferret, polecats, weasels and wolverines. Badgers are found in North America, Ireland, Great Britain and most of Europe. There are species in Japan, China, Indonesia and Malaysia. The honey badger is found in sub-Saharan Africa, the Arabian Desert, Turkmenistan, and India. Badgers are nocturnal mammals. Badgers have stocky bodies with short legs that are suitable for digging. They dig burrows underground called a sett. Their sett are often a maze of tunnels and chambers for sleeping around 6 badgers, setts are kept very clean. The badger has an elongated head with small ears and a distinctive black and white face, their body has greyish fur with black and white areas underneath. Badgers can grow to nearly a meter in length. The European badger is larger than the American badger and the Honey badger. Badgers on average weigh around 9 - 11 kg (20-24 lbs). The badger can run up to 30 km/h (19 mph) for a short period of time. A male badger is called a boar, the female is called a sow and the young are called cubs. A group of badgers is called a cete, although they are often called clans.

There are usually 2-15 badgers in a cete. The honey badger is a carnivorous species that has the reputation of being the most fearless and vicious of all mammals. Badgers were eaten in Britain during World War II and were once part of the Native American and settlers diets in the US. Russia still eats badger meat today.

~BIRTHDAYS AND ANNIVERSARIES~

Happy Birthday! Mar. 4, Christine Shiley, 1955

The Fence Man

There was a large group of people gathered. On one side of the group stood a man, Jesus. On the other side stood another, Satan. Separating them was a fence running through the group. The scene set, both Jesus and Satan began calling to people in the group. One by one, each having made up his or her own mind, went to either Jesus or Satan. This kept going for a time. Soon enough, Jesus had gathered around him a group of people from the larger crowd, as did Satan.

One man joined neither group. He climbed the fence that was there and sat on it. Jesus and his people left and disappeared, and so too did Satan and his people. The man on the fence sat alone. As this man sat, Satan came back, looking for something which he appeared to have lost. The man said, "Have you lost something?" Satan looked straight at him and replied, "No, there you are. Come with me." The man said, "But I sat on the fence. I chose neither you nor him." Satan said, "That's okay; I own the fence."

"Whoever is not with me is against me." - Jesus in Matthew 12:30
