CHILDREN'S CORNER

Hey, Kids! Buddy Davis here. God's handiwork can be seen on every scale—from the vastness of space to the tiny scales on a butterfly's wing. Never stop being amazed by His power and wisdom, and never stop magnifying His goodness to others.

Compound Eye
Calling insects "bug-eyed" is a compliment. Their compound eyes are made of many tiny eyes (though not like ours) called ommatidia (ah-ma-TIH-dee-a). Inside these structures are light-sensitive cells. If hit with light, the cells send an impulse to the insect's brain.

A Dog Exercising Faith

Tonight I made myself a toasted cheese sandwich. As I heated the hot plate, I thought about how strange it is that some people make such a big thing of faith. They find it hard to have faith in God.

I liberally spread cheese all around the outside of the sandwich on the hotplate, and let it sizzle until it went a golden brown color. It sounds, looks, and tastes amazing (you have to try it!).

As I was waiting, my dog (Sam) watched my every move. He had the familiar look of "I haven't been fed for two years...what are you going to do about it?" So as I turned my sizzling sandwich, I said "I'm giving you a biscuit in a minute." Immediately his tail moved from a slow casual wag, to the speed of a fan in the hand of a big old momma in the front row of a hot Louisiana church, with no air conditioning.

His tail went into overdrive simply because he believed me. He had "faith," and his faith evidenced itself in joy. This was a dog exercising faith. If a dog can do it, so can you. Believe God's promises, and in doing so, may your joy be full.

A good test for conversation: if you wouldn't write it and sign your name to it
----- don't say it.

"Opportunity is missed by most people because it is dressed in overalls and looks like work."
