Yellow Tang

The yellow tang is designed with sharp spines near its tail to help protect itself against predators and to anchor it to the rocks while sleeping. The mouth is perfectly designed to eat the algae on rocks. These designs were not the results of random, chance processes; they reflect the provision and creativity of its Creator.

This small, thin fish is bright yellow. It has a long snout-like mouth. Fun Facts: The yellow tang is also called the Pacific tang. During the night, its color fades. Its bright yellow color returns rapidly when the fish wakes up. The yellow tang is a popular aquarium fish and the top marine fish export from Hawaii.

CLASS: Actinopterygii (ray-finned fishes) ORDER: Perciformes (perch-like fishes)

FAMILY: Acanthuridae (surgeonfishes and tangs) GENUS/SPECIES: Zebrasoma flavescens Size: 3–5 in (7.6–13 cm) Depth: 7–150 ft (2.1–45 m) Diet: Browses on filamentous algae Habitat: In the reefs in the Pacific and Indian Oceans, west of Hawaii to East Africa

WHAT INSECURITIES MAKE US DO

August 4, 2014 Asher Witmer

Insecurities are tricky things. They require others to give us something.

Ever had someone “bless you” only to feel as if they were expecting some sort of affirmation in return?

The reality is that living out of insecurity is a powerless life. You give power away to everyone else because you’ve agreed with a lie that only they can give you significance.

Therefore, even your “serving” is done so it works in your favor of feeling significant—a dangerous place to be for anyone working with people.

“Yeah, I know someone like that.”

We all do.

The question is, do we have the ability to recognize it in ourselves?

Identify and eliminate that lie by confessing that you’ve lived in obedience to it. Repent from that. And personally claim God’s Words of identity when He says:

“I knew you before you were born. I delight over you with singing. My love has no partiality. You are mine! I am well pleased in you. Abide in my love.”
