CHILDREN'S CORNER

--Common Sand Dollar, Created on Day 5

Small but numerous spines of the common sand dollar are its primary tool for burrowing within the upper few centimeters of sandy ocean bottoms. Other specialized spines hold sand and debris aloft while food particles are ingested.

The sand dollar's test, or skeleton, is round and disc-like, and is covered with deep reddish-purple spines. The sand dollar loses its purple color when it is washed ashore.

As with other sand dollars, the common sand dollar has five petal-like furrows or pores on its test. These are used to move sea water into its internal water-vascular system, which allows for movement.

Fun Facts

Its shell is actually called a "test" since it is not a true shell.

The common sand dollar buries itself in the sand for food and protection.

The best time to collect sand dollars on the beach is after a heavy storm.

Thoughts for Today

The world seems to go faster all the time, and we seem to be busier all the time. If we look at the example Jesus gave us, however, we see swarms of people around him, plenty to keep him busy. He was always in high demand. Yet he took time alone to pray to his Father in heaven, to visit with friends and new acquaintances, and to rest when he had the chance--even in the midst of a storm. Jesus never appeared to be frantic.

When we strive to reach our goals to feel a sense of value and worth, it's easy to get busier, to stress more, all the time. We are depending on ourselves.

But when we know who we are in Christ and how important we are to him, our outlook on life changes. "Fix your attention on God. You'll be changed from the inside out." Only as you abide in Christ and depend fully on his strength and power . . . only as you choose to focus on him and follow his good plan for your life . . . will you be able to get out of the busyness and stress traps of life. Only then can God bring the best out of you and help you accomplish his purpose for your journey.
