Tumbili

Hi! My name is Tumbili, and I'm a black-and-white colobus monkey. I live along the equator in Africa. We monkeys live together in troops of three to fifteen monkeys. One male takes care of all the females and the babies. The male howls and leaps around the trees every morning and evening to make sure no other males come near his troop—he can be heard up to a mile away!

Here are some fun facts about monkeys like me:

- I'm the only species of monkey that doesn't have any thumbs! Without thumbs I am easily able to swing through the tops of branches with all four limbs.
- Baby black-and-white colobus monkeys are born all white.
- Our bushy tails are often longer than we are.
- We have huge three- or four-part stomachs, and they are always full. We need to eat lots and have such a large stomach in order to get enough nutrients from the leaves we eat. The food in our stomachs is often a quarter of our weight!

Size: 18–28 inches (46–71 cm); tail: 20–40 inches (51–101 cm)

Weight :17–32 pounds (7.6–14.5 kg)

THE MOUSE TRAP

A mouse looked through a crack in the wall to see the farmer and his wife opening a package. What food might it contain? He was aghast to discover that it was a mouse trap. Retreating to the farmyard the mouse proclaimed the warning: "There is a mouse trap in the house, a mouse trap in the house!" "The chicken clucked and scratched, raised her head and said, "Excuse me, Mr. Mouse, I can tell this is a grave concern to you, but it is of no consequence to me. I cannot be bothered by it." The mouse turned to the pig and told him, "There is a mouse trap in the house, a mouse trap in the house!" "I am so very sorry Mr. Mouse," sympathized the pig, "but there is nothing I can do about it but pray. Be assured that you are in my prayers." The mouse turned to the cow. She said, "Like wow, Mr. Mouse. A mouse trap. Like I am in grave danger. Duh...NOT!" So the mouse returned to the house, head down and dejected, to face the farmer's mouse trap alone. That very night a sound was heard throughout the house, like the sound of a mouse trap catching its prey. The farmer's wife rushed to see what was caught. In the darkness, she did not see that it was a venomous snake whose tail the trap had caught. The snake bit the farmer's wife. The farmer rushed her to the hospital. She returned home with a fever. Now everyone knows you treat a fever with fresh chicken soup, so the farmer took his hatchet to the farmyard for the soup's main ingredient. His wife's sickness continued so that friends and neighbors came to sit with her around the clock. To feed them, the farmer butchered the pig. The farmer's wife did not get well and a few days later she passed away. So many people came for her funeral, that the farmer had the cow slaughtered, to provide meat for all of them to eat.

So the next time you hear that someone is facing a problem and think that it does not concern you, remember that when there is a mouse trap in the house, the whole farmyard is at risk.
